“ECHO” CLUB NEWSLETTER

PRESIDENT'S PEN – Alan Carville

Junior Registration

Juniors and patrols are our priorities this season so make sure you have your registration fixed before the start of the season. Junior rego day is the 25th of September at the club from 9.00am – 11.00am.

Patrols

Tracey and TC have been working on patrols for the year and have teams and a roster almost worked out. Remember we may need to call on active reserve, long service and life members to fill some gaps until the season gets going.

Competition

First competition is this Sunday. Unfortunately, we soon won't be able to make fun of Thomas Howie's accent. Thomas has a one-way ticket to South America and will no longer be competition director. Thomas is one of the club's characters and will be greatly missed though I can see the club having to mount an IRB mission up the Amazon to rescue Thomas, worshipped as a god by a tribe never before in contact with civilisation. Anyone interested in Competition Director?

Masterclass

Feedback from our Masterclass attendees Bel, Jody and Chris that I've received so far has been really positive. Described variously as challenging, thought provoking and inspiring the program is very valuable and credit to SLSWA and SLSA for providing the opportunity to our members.

Polar Bears

Our polar bear swimmers finally had the opportunity to compete off the club at the northern end last Sunday. Conditions were fairly challenging and we stretched the water safety rules about as far as we dare for the swim to go ahead. Thanks to Stuart King, Graham Croft and Trent Huzzard who paddled out on boards and enabled the swim to proceed.

Hopefully we'll have some motorised rescue gear available this Sunday. Come on down and check out the new facilities, it looks like good weather.

Spain

I'm sure the hot blooded latin types are much more comfortable with budge smugglers than the straight laced North Americans. While Doug is spruiking Polar Bears, Kathy and Nic Stewart are in Spain scoping out likely tapas bars for a club sundowner, here Nic models a pair of Scarboro sluggos at San Sebastian.

Santa Monica

Doug and Jill are in Santa Monica testing the waters. While our season is about to start, they're winding down. Aussie lifesaver shooting the breeze with the local lifeguards and check out the beach shelters about every 100 metres along a very wide beach, apparently a similar idea was in place at Scarborough many years ago.

Beach Bar Sundowner

The second club sundowner at the Beach Bar was another success with a good turnout of members and a mix of others. The young crew were there a little late and left early for the Grotto. Forgetting my age and my capacity for late nights, I said I'd meet them down there later and sure enough lined up in the queue. About ten minutes in and having advanced about half way along, a bouncer came up to me and said I wouldn't be allowed entry. It might have been a cover for not wanting old people but apparently wearing a suit exceeded the maximum dress standards. On reflection given my rapidly diminished brain cell capacity it was probably a blessing.

Jose Breaks the Internet

Jose Desfosses is a bit of a shy and retiring type of person and he's probably embarrassed that his appearance on Facebook has gone viral with more likes than I've seen for any other SSLSC post. I'm joking of course and well done Jose, winning the long run and bronze medals in the ski and the beach sprint. I hear he's off to Paris with wife Linda for a holiday after the competition finishes, life's tough for some...
