Storm Chasers

Some dubious entities managed to garner a bit of Facebook time over the weekend with footage and commentary of the waterspout. Snooky and lifeguard Adam in the CoS truck and Cd m up by Revogy m Watching the vision of the waterspout crossing the beach and straight through the dubious operational area you could see pieces of formwork board being lifted skyward. Fortunately, no real damage was done though if one of those boards struck someone the result could have been tragic

POLAR BEARS – Doug McGhie

Episode 4 – Rougher, Tougher and Reminiscing

Rough conditions again last Sunday so with no water safety available it became get wet, get out, rug up and go home, and they did. The B Grade group way outnumbered the A Graders, showing who is toughest if not fastest. There were absolutely no worries with everyone safely on the beach in quick time. Rosie and Avril helped Chris Dickson to recover his temperature after the swim with Chris looking like he needed a little help.

Graham Croft remarked that he had never seen so many fully clothed and warm IRB and Jet Ski drivers on the beach at one time, safety in numbers.

Then the details of how, in days or more, when a duty boat could not be rowed beyond the break (if there were enough there to carry the wooden monster to the beach) then a boy would be assigned to be buoy for the day.

A jet by the name of Milder or Anney, maybe Wright or Wilson, would don a coloured cap, power through the waves, sit beyond the break and wait for the crowd of twenty or thirty or so to swim around him before catching a wave to shore. As they say it is certainly not like that now with responsibilities progressed along way from then. Still we never lost anyone and everyone could swim rather well but the buoy did get a little lonely at times while waiting out the back on an ice floe.

It's all on again next Sunday, with 18°C maximum, no doubt well after the swimming north to north west winds and showers possible. Just another day in the Polar Bear paradise of Scarborough! See you there.

FIRST AID OFFICER – Shane Power

Latest News and Q&As from the First Aid Officer.

Communication: If any member has any questions or needs to alert me to First Aid matters please E-Mail me on: firstaidofficer@scarboro.com.au or leave a note on the white Board in the First Aid Room

All equipment will be checked and resupplied over the next six weeks to ensure that we are ready to go when we become operational for the 2017/18 season.

I will provide some revision information topics to get the d d thinking caps on the course of action we take when faced with First Responder/First Aid incidences.

I will be giving a scenario as incidences can have different responses and outcomes depending on the factors that present themselves on the day. One week will be a scenario and the next week will be a conclusion on how we dealt with the situation in a positive outcome for all concerned.

(They will all have happy endings)

SCENARIO #1 2017/18:

A member of the public has run up to inform you of a surfer who has been cut by the fin of their surfboard and is lying on the beach 150 metres south from main patrol.

Information is that he is conscious but there is a lot of bleeding. You respond with another patrol member and a young SRC member.

Have a think on what equipment might be required and the course of action you follow.

The conclusion of Scenario #1 will be in the next Echo #512.
